Involving and Consulting Children Policy

The Parachute club aims to involve and consult children; a child's opinion should be taken into account in all that affects them. Involving children will encourage them to learn, participate and understand the environment around them and appreciate others.

Children will be involved and consulted through listening to what they say, behaviour, drama, role play and team games and regular discussions, and hold meetings with the staff to discuss the club, activities and other relevant topics.

Children are involved in the interview process when recruiting staff

Consultation and involvement will be regularly maintained with staff, parents and children so that any child's input will be considered and noted. Clear explanations and outcomes will always be given when appropriate.
